GW8:

Subject: Soviet IL-18's for Cuba

The IL-18's are medium-range jetprop passenger transport planes. They are being supplied to the Cuban national airline ostensibly to replace existing British-built "Britannia" transports, which the Cubans find hard to maintain because of difficulty in obtaining spare parts. It is thought the IL-18's will be used on the Prague-Havana run.

US efforts to persuade other countries to deny landing and overflight rights for the IL-18's have so far proved successful,
